Continuation of Substance of Interview including description of the general nature of what was agreed to if an agreement was reached, or any other comments: Applicant asserted that claim 1 limited the structure to allow both the tool and the workpiece to be revolved in separate uses of the tool, however, it is believed that claim 1 allows either the tool or the workpiece to be revolved. Applicant asserted that the revolving action of the tool gives the tool structure; however, it is believed that no structure is defined by the revolving action of the tool or the workpiece. Applicant asserted that revolving the tool about the workpiece has a different meaning than rotating the tool about the workpiece, however, it is believed that in claim 1 these terms are interchangeable, and they define the same intended use of the tool. Applicant asserted that the angle between the cutting edge and the centerline of the workpiece is not changed, and that the secondary component is not adapted to guide the workpiece in a different direction in Cutlan. However, it is believed that element g in Cutlan is adapted to guide the workpiece in a different direction and changes the angle between the cutting edge and the centerline of the workpiece. The examiner agreed that Cutlan is not a monolithic structure. Applicant asserted that the cutting edge of Cutlan does not cut through the surface of the workpiece, however, it is believed that in figure 2 of Cutlan the cutting edge k is clearly cutting through the surface of the workpiece .
